SEATTLE ART MUSEUM ANNOUNCES $150 MILLION CAMPAIGN WITH OVER $125M PLEDGED TO DATE

Included are four leadership gifts from individual donors totaling over $56M supporting all aspects of the museum’s mission

SEATTLE, WA – The Seattle Art Museum (SAM) announced today the launch of the public phase of a $150 million campaign, SAM Forward, including four leadership gifts totaling over $56 million from donors who are longtime supporters of the museum. To date, the campaign has raised more than $125 million towards its goals of renovating and expanding the Seattle Asian Art Museum, bolstering the museum’s endowment to support and expand the institution’s artistic and educational programs, and investing in bold projects that will advance SAM’s position as an international leader in the arts.

“This is a historic moment for SAM and our community,” says Kimeryl Rorschach, Illsley Ball Nordstrom Director and CEO. “This campaign funds a beautifully restored and expanded Seattle Asian Art Museum. It strengthens the institution’s financial foundation, empowering future generations to make strategic choices and take artistic and programmatic risks. This is happening at a crucial time, when Seattle is evolving and the world is becoming increasingly interconnected. SAM Forward ensures an incredible legacy for the entire community of Seattle and beyond.”

Launched in 2015, SAM Forward presents an opportunity to expand key programs and projects to strengthen the museum’s impact in the region and reach broader audiences across its three sites, which collectively serve nearly a million visitors every year. The Seattle Asian Art Museum’s increased space will allow for expanded programs that explore diverse perspectives on Asian art and culture. At the Olympic Sculpture Park, investments will ensure year-long activation of the site through free programs for all. Finally, a strengthened institutional endowment will underpin all that SAM does, including presenting special exhibitions and sharing the museum’s diverse permanent collection.

Winnie Stratton, President of SAM’s Board of Trustees, and Charlie Wright, SAM trustee, serve as co-chairs of the SAM Forward campaign. “We have been so inspired to see the many ways supporters have stepped up to advance the museum and its mission to connect art to life,” says Stratton. Adds Wright, “SAM has always been an ambitious institution. We have long known of the critical needs driving this campaign, but we are also taking this opportunity to push ourselves in new ways and achieve even greater successes.”

SAM Forward is another in a series of successful campaigns over the institution’s history that have transformed the cultural fabric of the city and region. Over the years, SAM has constructed new buildings in the heart of downtown, created an award-winning sculpture park on Puget Sound, strengthened and expanded its collections, and cared for and preserved thousands of works of art. SAM has welcomed millions of visitors to its three sites: The Seattle Art Museum downtown, the Seattle Asian Art Museum in Volunteer Park, and the Olympic Sculpture Park on the downtown waterfront.

ABOUT SAM FORWARD

SEATTLE ASIAN ART MUSEUM ($54M)

The Seattle Asian Art Museum renovation and expansion project takes an early 20th-century building and brings it up to 21st-century standards. The project preserves the 1933 historic building and its Art Deco façade, improves the building’s infrastructure, protects the collection with climate control and seismic system upgrades, enhances ADA accessibility, and improves the museum’s connection to Volunteer Park, including the restoration of historic, Olmsted-designed pathways in the park. An expansion of the historic building provides approximately 13,900 square feet of much-needed space, making way for a new exhibition gallery, a dedicated education space, and a new conservation center.

GROWING SAM’S ENDOWMENT ($60M)

A larger endowment will support the artistic and educational programs across all three of SAM’s sites and provide greater access for the region’s ever-growing community. Over the years, SAM has generated significant artistic scholarship and presented groundbreaking exhibitions, including Picasso: Masterpieces from the Musée National Picasso (2010), Kehinde Wiley: A New Republic (2016), and Yayoi Kusama: Infinity Mirrors (2017). SAM’s education initiatives serve schoolchildren, educators, families, and adults through hands-on programs that have become nationally recognized models for engaging new audiences. Each year, SAM serves nearly 40,000 students through in-museum programs and provides professional development opportunities for over 1,700 teachers.
STRATEGIC INITIATIVES AND PLANNED GIFTS ($36M)

Investments in key strategic projects will allow the museum to innovate and expand its offerings. This includes a variety of significant opportunities, such as the $3.5 million challenge grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation to establish and endow the Asian Paintings Conservation Center at the Seattle Asian Art Museum, the only one of its kind in the western United States. SAM is also committed to securing funds for the creation of a new program on South Asian art and culture, including a full-time curator, more classical and contemporary exhibitions, and care for and expansion of SAM’s South Asian collection. Other strategic investments include: major art acquisitions that expand and enhance SAM’s global collection; increased programming at the Olympic Sculpture Park; resources for the institution’s equity initiatives, including a paid internship program aimed at historically underrepresented groups in the museum field; and funding for the institution’s technology infrastructure that will enable our visitors to engage with the museum through technology.

ABOUT SEATTLE ART MUSEUM

As the leading visual art institution in the Pacific Northwest, SAM draws on its global collections, powerful exhibitions, and dynamic programs to provide unique educational resources benefiting the Seattle region, the Pacific Northwest, and beyond. SAM was founded in 1933 with a focus on Asian art. By the late 1980s the museum had outgrown its original home, and in 1991 a new 155,000-square-foot downtown building, designed by Venturi, Scott Brown & Associates, opened to the public. The 1933 building was renovated and reopened as the Asian Art Museum in 1994. SAM’s desire to further serve its community was realized in 2007 with the opening of two stunning new facilities: the nine-acre Olympic Sculpture Park (designed by Weiss/Manfredi Architects)—a “museum without walls,” free and open to all—and the Allied Works Architecture designed 118,000-square-foot expansion of its main, downtown location, including 232,000 square feet of additional space built for future expansion. The Olympic Sculpture Park and SAM’s downtown expansion celebrated their tenth anniversary in 2017.

From a strong foundation of Asian art to noteworthy collections of African and Oceanic art, Northwest Coast Native American art, European and American art, and modern and contemporary art, the strength of SAM’s collection of approximately 25,000 objects lies in its diversity of media, cultures, and time periods.
